

Course number and section: ENGL 395-101

Course Topic: Popular Literature: Science Fiction

Credits: 3

Term: 2022 W T2

Instructor: Jon Vickery

Course Description:

Science fiction literature explores the wealth and the challenges of the human experience by asking the important and speculative question, "What might be?" Sci-fi looks forward to the fantastic, the astonishing, the bizarre, the compelling, and the frightening in a way that has shaped the contemporary world profoundly. In this course we will discuss and consider many of the themes and concepts that these far-reaching stories present to the reader, such as time travel, technology, space travel, new worlds, alien encounter, robots, transhumanism, the metaphysical, and more.
